weeks immediately before; but, if either of the parties dwell in any extraparochial place, then the licence may be granted to the church or chapel adjoining.

That any perſon ſolemnizing matrimony in any other place than a church or chapel, where banns have been uſually publiſhed (unleſs by ſpecial licence firſt obtained from ſuch perſon or perſons having proper authority to grant the ſame) ſhall, upon being lawfully convicted thereof, be tranſported as a felon for fourteen years, and the marriage to be void; provided the proſecution be commenced within three years after the offence is committed.

That marriages ſolemnized by licence (where either of the parties be under twenty-one years of age, except a widower or widow) without conſent of parents, or guardians appointed by the Court of Chancery, to be abſolutely void; but, where conſent is unreaſonably with-held, or parents, &c. beyond ſeas, may apply to the Lord Chancellor, &c.

That Churchwardens provide books, in which all banns and marriages are to be regiſtered, and to be ſigned by the Miniſter, and the books to belong to the pariſh, and kept for public uſe.

That all marriages be ſolemnized before two witneſſes, beſides the Miniſter, and to be properly regiſtered, and ſigned by the Miniſter, witneſſes, and the parties married.

That any perſon convicted of making a falſe entry in the pariſh regiſter, or forging or deſtroying, with an ill intent, any thing relating thereto, and the ſame with regard to the licence, ſhall ſuffer death as a felon: Likewiſe, that the Act is to be read four times a year in all churches or chapels, and nothing in it is to extend to the Royal Family, Quakers, Jews, Scotland, or parts beyond the ſeas; and that ſpecial licences are to be granted as uſual. This Act does not take place till the 25th of March, 1754.

A Receipt to kill BUGGS.

TAKE one ounce of quickſilver, and the whites of five or ſix eggs; mix them and beat them well together in a wooden diſh with a bruſh, till the globules of the quickſilver are but juſt perceptible: Then, having taken the bedſtead to pieces, and bruſhed it very clean from duſt and dirt, without waſhing, rub into all the cracks and joints the above mixture, letting it dry on; nor muſt the bedſtead be waſhed at any time afterwards. By the firſt application, they will, in moſt places be deſtroyed; if not, a ſecond will not fail of deſtroying them intirely.
